Dear Commander

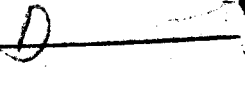

Thank you for your recent letter. It recalls my pleasant memory of travelling with you when Mrs. Dulles and I visited Europe in 1959.

Let me assure you that we have a particular interest in the careers of military personnel who serve with the Agency. In this connection, we have been informed that all information bearing on your performance while with this Agency has been brought to the attention of appropriate officials in the United States Navy.

I do not know what weight it will carry, but I am sending along a letter to the Chief of Naval Personnel, setting forth my personal appreciation of your capabilities. A copy is enclosed for your information.

Best wishes.

Sincerely,

Dear Admiral Smedberg:

STAT [redacted] was detailed to duty with this Agency from January 1956 to July 1959.

He has asked if I would write you about his performance during this period. I am delighted to do so.

Reports on his fitness as an officer while with this Agency rate him more highly as a pilot than as an administrator. I consider this a correct assessment in view of his natural love of flying and his superior capabilities in this area. This skill was also stressed in special letters about his performance.

STAT In reviewing the reports on this officer, I find that his ability in "Ship Handling" is rated as "not observed". I can find no formal rating on "Aircraft Handling" in which we believe he has demonstrated outstanding skill. I personally observed [redacted] aircraft handling when he served as my pilot and escort during [redacted]

We are grateful to the United States Navy for having made this officer's services available to this Agency. I request that you consider our high opinion of him in evaluating his total career.

Thank you for your letter of 3 January regarding the record of your performance while detailed to this Agency.

Since receiving your letter, I have had your records reviewed to ensure that all of your fitness reports and letters of appreciation received during your service with us had been transmitted to the Department of the Navy. I find that these materials were forwarded and have been duly acknowledged.

I am, of course, concerned that an officer's military career be in no way hindered by reason of service with this Agency and we have been especially careful in making sure that all pertinent information concerning the performance of such officers is made available to the appropriate service. On the other hand, however, the Agency does not interfere with the normal promotional practices of the service concerned.

Having confirmed that the appropriate materials concerning your service with us were transmitted to the Navy, I think it would be neither proper nor useful for me to reaffirm the fitness reports which have already been submitted.

I appreciated your writing to me about your problem and would like to take this opportunity to thank you again for your important and valuable service to this Agency.

Sincerely,

Allen W. Dulles
